III. Significant Accounting Policies and Accounting Estimates (continued)

10. Financial instruments (continued)

(3) Method for determination of fair values of financial assets and financial liabilities (continued)

The Group's financial instruments are measured at fair value at each balance sheet date. The following describes the method for determining the fair value of financial instruments and the level in the fair value hierarchy in which they are categorised, if the fair value of financial instruments is categorised in different levels of the fair value hierarchy, the fair value measurement is categorised in its entirety in the same level of the fair value hierarchy as the lowest level input that is significant to the entire measurement.

(4) Offsetting of financial assets and financial liabilities

Financial assets and financial liabilities are presented separately in the balance sheet and shall not be offset against each other. However, when all of the following conditions are met, financial assets and financial liabilities are presented in the balance sheet at the amount after offsetting each other: (1) the Group has a legally enforceable right to offset the recognised amounts; and (2) the Group intends to settle on a net basis, or to realise the financial assets and settle the financial liabilities simultaneously.

(5) Classification and treatment of financial liabilities and equity instruments

The Group classifies financial liabilities and equity instruments at initial recognition according to the following: (1) Where the Group cannot unconditionally avoid the performance of a contractual obligation by delivering cash or another financial asset, the contractual obligation is a financial liability. Although certain financial instruments contain no explicit terms and conditions for the delivery of cash or another financial asset, the contractual obligation may be indirectly established through other terms and conditions. (2) Where a financial instrument will or may be settled in the Group's own equity instruments, it is necessary to consider whether the Group's own equity instruments used to settle the instrument are substitutes for cash, another financial asset, or the residual interest in the assets of the entity after deducting all of its liabilities. In the case where they are substitutes for cash, another financial asset, or the residual interest in the assets of the entity after deducting all of its liabilities, the instrument should be a financial liability of the Group; in the case where they are not substitutes for cash, another financial asset, or the residual interest in the assets of the entity after deducting all of its liabilities, the instrument should be an equity instrument of the Group. Under certain conditions, a financial instrument contains a contractual obligation to be settled in the Group's own equity instruments, but the contractual rights or obligations will be equal to the amount of a fixed quantity of the Group's own equity instruments multiplied by a fixed amount of currency or other financial assets, such contractual obligation is a financial liability of the Group. Except for financial liabilities that are designated as at fair value through profit or loss, financial liabilities are subsequently measured at amortised cost using the effective interest method. Gains or losses arising from derecognition of financial liabilities or amortisation using the effective interest method are recognised in profit or loss.

When classifying a financial instrument (or a component thereof) on initial recognition, the Group considers the terms and conditions agreed between the Group and the holders of the instrument, such as whether the Group has a contractual obligation to deliver cash or another financial asset to the holders of the instrument, or to exchange financial assets or financial liabilities with the holders of the instrument under conditions that are potentially unfavourable to the Group, or whether the instrument will or may be settled in the Group's own equity instruments and the significance of such terms and conditions to the contract, and other factors, to determine whether the financial instrument should be classified as a financial liability or an equity instrument.

If the financial instrument is classified as an equity instrument, interest, dividend, gain or loss and gain or loss arising from changes in fair value relating to the instrument are not recognised in profit or loss. Distributions to holders of equity instruments are recognised as profit appropriations by the Group. Transaction costs relating to equity instruments are deducted from equity, net of any related income tax benefits.

If the financial instrument is reclassified between financial liabilities and equity instruments, the Group shall disclose the reclassification and the reasons for it. Gains, losses, expenses or interest previously recognised are not adjusted retrospectively upon reclassification of financial instruments between financial liabilities and equity instruments.

For performance obligations that are fulfilled at a point in time, the Group recognises revenue at the point in time at which the customer obtains control of the relevant goods or services. In determining whether the customer obtains control of the goods or services, the Group considers the following indicators:

(1) The Group has a present right to payment for the goods or services.

(2) The Group has transferred the legal title of the goods to the customer.

(3) The Group has transferred physical possession of the goods to the customer.

(4) The Group has transferred the significant risks and rewards of ownership of the goods to the customer.

(5) The customer has accepted the goods or services.

The Group's right to consideration in exchange for goods or services that it has transferred to a customer is recognised as a contract asset, unless the right is unconditional (that is, only the passage of time is required before payment of that consideration is due). Receivable is the Group's right to consideration that is unconditional. A contract liability is the Group's obligation to transfer goods or services to a customer for which the Group has received consideration (or an amount of consideration is due) from the customer.

(2) Specific accounting policies related to the main activities of the Company's revenue are described below:

① Contracts for sale of goods

Contracts for sale of goods between the Group and customers usually include the performance obligation to transfer goods only. In general, the Group recognises revenue when the goods are delivered to the customer, the customer has full discretion over the manner of distribution and pricing to sell the goods, has the primary responsibility when onselling the goods to other parties, bears the inventory risk before and after onselling, and has accepted the goods according to the contract, and the collection of the related receivables is reasonably assured.

② Contracts for provision of services

Contracts for provision of services between the Group and customers usually include the provision of technical consulting services and after-sale maintenance services. While the Group is entitled to the contract payments according to the contracts, such payments are usually settled by the Group's customers when the Group transfers the control of the relevant services to the customers. The Group transfers the control of the services over the period of the contract, and recognises revenue over the period of the contract according to the progress towards complete satisfaction of that performance obligation, except for those that are inappropriate to measure the progress towards complete satisfaction of the performance obligation. The Group determines the progress towards complete satisfaction of the performance obligation based on input method, which recognises revenue on the basis of the Group's efforts or inputs to the satisfaction of a performance obligation relative to the total expected inputs to the satisfaction of that performance obligation. The Group considers the costs incurred that are proportionate to the satisfaction of the performance obligation as the input of the service. If the costs incurred are not proportionate to the progress towards complete satisfaction of the performance obligation, the Group recognises revenue only to the extent of the costs incurred until such time that the outcome of the performance obligation can be reasonably measured.

Based on the above assumptions, the following table indicates the instantaneous changes in the Group's net profit and other comprehensive income and owners' equity that would arise if foreign exchange rates for financial instruments denominated in foreign currencies had reasonably possible changes at the balance sheet date, with all other variables remaining constant:

		2020		2019
Item	Change in exchange rate	Effect on net profit	Effect on owners' equity	Effect on net profit	Effect on owners' equity
All foreign currencies against RMB	5% appreciation against RMB	9,870,299.53	9,870,299.53	8,496,140.81	8,496,140.81
All foreign currencies against RMB	5% depreciation against RMB	(9,870,299.53)	(9,870,299.53)	(8,496,140.81)	(8,496,140.81)

(2) Sensitivity analysis of interest rate risk

Sensitivity analysis of interest rate risk is based on the following assumptions:

Changes in market interest rates affect the interest income or expense of financial instruments with variable interest rates;

For fixed rate financial instruments measured at fair value, changes in market interest rates affect the interest income or expense of financial instruments with fixed interest rates;

The changes in fair value of derivative financial instruments and other financial assets or liabilities are calculated by discounting the future cash flows after the balance sheet date.

Based on the above assumptions, the following table indicates the instantaneous changes in the Group's net profit and other comprehensive income and owners' equity that would arise if interest rates for financial instruments with variable interest rates had reasonably possible changes at the balance sheet date, with all other variables remaining constant:

		2020		2019
Item	Change in exchange rate	Effect on net profit	Effect on owners' equity	Effect on net profit	Effect on owners' equity
Variable-rate borrowings	Increased 1%	(2,707,292.50)	(2,707,292.50)	(2,656,155.56)	(2,656,155.56)
Variable-rate borrowings	Decreased 1%	2,707,292.50	2,707,292.50	2,656,155.56	2,656,155.56
